INTRODUCTION

The following report presents information on the movement of the inmate population into, amongst and out of the institutions of the Massachusetts Department of Correction during the years 1974 and 1975. Material for the report was obtained from the computerized data base developed by the Correction and Parole Management Information System.

The report has three basic purposes, these are:

1. to present the numbers of admissions and releases of various types during the years 1974 and 1975;
2. to show the effect of changes in the volume of movements on the size of the institutional population; and
3. to present information concerning the numbers of transfers within the institutional system of the Department.

Tables I and II give an overview of population movement and trends over the last few years. The Appendix contains tables which present the basic information on the numbers of admissions and releases of various types for each institution in the Department. Additionally, the Appendix includes tables of the numbers of transfers among the Massachusetts Correctional Institutions.

OVERVIEW

Admissions and Releases

During the year 1974, total admissions to Massachusetts Correctional Institutions increased by 7.2% from 4,037 in 1973 to 4,328 in 1974. However, the two major categories of admissions from the street, court commitments and returning parole violators, both decreased significantly - 19.7% for court commitments and 20.9% for parole violators. The increase in total admissions during the year 1974 was due to a threefold increase in the number of persons received to await trial. The vast majority of this rise can be attributed to the use made by some Massachusetts counties and the state of Rhode Island of MCI-Framingham to house women awaiting trial.

The total number of releases from Massachusetts Correctional Institutions during the year 1974 also increased by 7.7%. Here too, the major category of releases to the street - paroles - decreased substantially from 989 during 1973 to 868 for 1974, a drop of 15.4%. However, the number of persons released on good conduct discharges or at expiration of sentence increased by 45.1% from 102 in 1973 to 148 during 1974. A sizable increase in the number of persons released by order of the court occurred during 1974. This type of release corresponds to the admissions to await trial discussed above. Included are such occurrences as releases on bail or personal recognizance.

The total numbers of both admissions and releases continued to increase during 1975. Admissions rose by nearly 15% while releases increased by almost 9%. Court commitments increased by 22.4% from 868 to 1,062. The decrease of 6.3% in the number of parole violators returned was substantially less of a drop than the decrease of 20.9% during the previous year. The number of paroles to the street continued to drop, a decrease of 15.7% from 837 for 1974 to 705 for 1975. Discharges and expirations increased again during 1975 by 47.3% to 218.

As Table 2 shows, the institutional population remained relatively stable during 1974, increasing 1.3%. During 1975 this increase was much greater, 11.3%. The rise of court commitments combined with the continuing decline in paroles and the high level of admissions to await trial seem to account for this increase. The population pressures late in 1975 were clearly due to the first two of these factors. The number of court commitments was artificially low during 1974 because of a moratorium imposed on commitments to Concord as a response to severe overcrowding in that institution. The decreasing number of paroles has obviously lessened the effect of that major outflow from the system. This decrease seems to be attributable to a trend toward longer sentences for Concord commitments. This trend has the effect of decreasing the size of the pool of persons eligible for parole in any given year. The ratio of persons paroled to persons seen by the Parole Board had not dropped very much as of 1975.

Institutional Transfers

The total volume of inmate transfers amongst the MCI's during 1974 and 1975 increased by 5.6% and 8.2% respectively, over the previous year. This increase can be attributed to two factors.

First, with the Reception Diagnostic Center in April 1974, the number of transfers out of MCI-Walpole increased as most new Walpole commitments were sent to the RDC for classification. During 1974, 131 persons were transferred from Walpole to the RDC. This constituted 22.9% of all Walpole transfers while transfers directly from Walpole to Norfolk totalled 335 or 58.5% of the total. Such direct transfers to Norfolk fell off to 180 or 28.4% of the Walpole total for 1975, while persons classified to Norfolk by the RDC constituted the majority (59.4%) of transfers out of the RDC during that year. Nearly 15% of all persons classified by the RDC were transferred to institutions of lesser security than Norfolk. Only 18.3% of RDC transfers were sent to Walpole and 7.6% to Concord. On the whole, the numbers indicate that the RDC is effective in diverting an increasing number of men from Walpole to more appropriate settings at an earlier stage of their incarceration.

Secondly, the volume of transfers has increased because of the increase in the number of pre-release facilities from only three in 1973 to ten by 1975. These new facilities have nearly tripled the number of beds available in community-based programs.

In 1973, transfers to pre-release accounted for 16% of all institutional transfers. During 1974 this proportion increased to 24.7% and rose to 26.3% in 1975. A notable development has been a shift in the source of transfers to pre-release centers. While in 1973 nearly 71% of persons in such facilities had come from Concord, in 1975 almost 60% had come from institutions other than Concord. Transfers from Walpole to pre-release rose from about 2% of all such transfers in 1973 to over 10% in 1975. It is also true that there has been a decline in the proportion of Concord transfers to pre-release sent to Shirley. In 1973, the rate of Shirley transfers was over 76%, while in 1975 this had dropped to about 45%.
