Executive Summary

2007 County Commitments

- There were 16,504 criminal commitments by the courts to a Massachusetts county facility (house of correction) during the calendar year 2007, representing a decrease of 7% in the number of commitments from the 17,722 commitments in 2006.
- There were 15,609 males (95% of the total population) and 895 females (5% of the total population) committed to serve a criminal sentence in county facilities.
- In 2007, female new court commitments in county facilities decreased by 10%, from 997 in 2006 to 895 in 2007. It is important to note that not all county facilities house women*. The decrease in 2007 represents the smallest female commitment population since 2002.
- The number of male commitments decreased by 1,116, or 7%, from 16,725 in 2006 to 15,609 in 2007. Although the male commitment population decreased in 2007, it represented an increase from 2005.
- The largest racial/ethnic group represented was Caucasian (55%), followed by African American (22%) and Hispanic (20%).
- The mean age of all new court commitments to county facilities during 2007 was 33 years. The mean age was 33 years for males and 34 years for females. Age at commitment ranged from 16 to 84 years.
- Of those who reported an education level, almost all of the population (89%) had a self-reported educational level of 12th grade or less. This was similar for both males and females.
- Over three quarters of prisoners reported their marital status as single, excluding those where marital status was not reported.
- The three counties with the highest number of commitments were Suffolk, Hampden and Worcester. Fifteen percent of the county commitments were to Suffolk County, 14% were to Hampden, and 14% were to Worcester County house of correction.
- Data reported by inmates about their last residence prior to commitment showed that close to 30% of males came from either Suffolk (15%) or Worcester (14%) counties. The majority of females reported a last address in Hampden (27%), Suffolk (19%), and Bristol (16%) counties.
- Within Massachusetts, the most common, self-reported, last address for females was split between Springfield (17%) and Boston (17%). For males the top two cities were Boston (15%) and Springfield (8%).
- When separated into violent (Person and Sex) and non-violent (Property, Drug, and 'Other') offenses, the majority (77%) of county commitments were incarcerated for non-violent offenses.
- Offense category differed by gender. Males were committed for offenses in the 'Other' (36%), Property (21%), Person (21%), Drug (20%), and Sex (2%) categories. In comparison, female commitments were for 'Other' (30%), Property (29%), Drug (23%) and Person (18%) offenses. In contrast to the male commitments, the females committed more Drug and Property offenses. Four female offenders were committed for a Sex offense.

* Females can be sentenced by the courts directly to the Department of Correction (DOC) for a county sentence.

- The mean sentence length for both males and females was 8.5 months, excluding sentences in lieu of payment of fine.
- Six percent of female and two percent of male commitments were incarcerated in lieu of payment of fine.
- Excluding those committed in lieu of fines, the majority of commitments, 58%, were serving a sentence of six months or less. Twenty-one percent were incarcerated with a sentence of seven months through one year; 14% for a sentence of thirteen months through two years and four percent were sentenced to serve over two years. Three percent of commitments were commitment in lieu of payment of a fine.
- The largest percentage difference in New Court Commitments from 2006 to 2007 was to Franklin County House of Correction with an increase of 18% (251 to 295), followed by Berkshire , up 17% from 2006 (620 to 725).
- The largest proportion of New Court Commitments for males was from Suffolk and Worcester District Courts (14% each). The next highest proportion of commitments for males was from Essex (12%), Hampden (11%), Middlesex (10%), and Bristol (9%) District Courts. Nine percent of males were committed from a Superior Court. For females, the largest proportion of commitments was from Hampden District Court (25%), followed by Suffolk and Bristol (22 % and 19%) District Courts. Eight percent of females were committed from a Superior Court.

Introduction

This report provides a statistical description of offenders committed to Massachusetts county facilities (houses of correction) during 2007. Offenders are described in terms of commitment institution, committing court, offense, sentence length, sentence type (weekend and jail sentences), gender, age, race, marital status, education, place of birth, and residence. Trends in court commitments to the county correctional system over the past five years are also presented.

All new court commitments and those individuals who began serving a new criminal sentence during the year are included in this report. If an individual was committed more than once during 2007, each court commitment for that individual is counted separately. Information for offenders committed to the Massachusetts Department of Correction (state facilities) is not included in this report. It is important to note that not all county facilities house females. Some females serving a county sentence are transferred or committed directly to the Massachusetts State Correctional Institution – Framingham. Females at state facilities are not included in this report. On October 1st, 2007, the Western Massachusetts Regional Women's Correctional Center officially opened to house incarcerated female offenders.

The statistical tables were derived from information submitted by each county facility to the Research and Planning Division of the Massachusetts Department of Correction (DOC). A glossary of terms is provided at the end of this report to reference definitions of some terms used.

Specific information about 54 inmates committed to Essex County in 2004, was unavailable due to their database conversion in December 2004. Consequently, tables in this report referring to 2004 figures exclude 54 inmates committed to Essex County where no descriptive information was available, except for Table 23, "Committing Institution 2003 to 2007" (p. 21).

Due to computer conversions, the commitment records for Suffolk County were limited for the period January through April 2000. In an effort to maintain data consistency, the Suffolk County commitments from May to December 2000 were pro rated to the entire 12-month calendar year. In addition to total number of commitments, the characteristics of the committed inmates were also pro rated for the same period.

There are fourteen counties in Massachusetts. All counties, except for Nantucket County, have at least one county correctional facility administered by the county Sheriff. These facilities usually contain a jail for pre-trial detainees and a house of correction for sentenced inmates.

Several counties have specialized facilities for sentenced offenders including Step Down programs and Community Correction Centers. Offenders are not committed directly to these facilities but are transferred from another correctional facility. As this report covers county correctional facility commitments from courts, offenders who transfer to a program are counted upon their commitment to the county facility, and not upon subsequent transfer to the correctional program or center.

This report has been organized into three sections. The first section describes the demographic characteristics of the 2007 new court commitments. The second section depicts information about criminal offenses for the population. The third section addresses data regarding sentencing, such as court from which committed, type of sentence, and sentence length.

Please note that due to rounding, percentages in the tables may not add to 100%. In the tables, "Last Grade Completed" (p.6) and "Marital Status" (p.7) there are a high number of missing cases (noted as "Not Reported"); consequently, results should be interpreted with caution.

Demographic Characteristics of County
New Court Commitments in 2007

For new court commitments to county Houses of Correction, 2007 saw a decrease of 7% (1,218 inmates) from the previous year. As seen in the table and chart below, there was a fairly consistent decrease in new commitments between 1997 and 1999, after which the number of commitments remained relatively stable. There was, however, a peak in 2006 of 17,722 commitments.

From 1997 to 2007, there was an approximate 17% decrease in new court commitments from 19,842 in 1997 to 16,504 in 2007. Female commitments decreased from 1997 to 2000, followed by an increase for five years and then a decrease from 2006 on, with a ten-year high of 1,059 in 2005. Female commitments consistently represented only 4% to 6% of the population. Over the past ten years, male commitments decreased from 18,860 in 1997 to a ten-year low of 14,780 in 2000, followed by an increase for six years to 16,725 in 2006.

* In 1998, 'Hispanic' was coded as a separate category for race. Currently, 'Hispanic' is a term used for ethnicity and is not considered a separate race category.

In 2007, the majority of female commitments (61%) reported a race/ethnicity of Caucasian. Twenty percent of female commitments reported their race/ethnicity as Black, followed by 14% Hispanic. In a similar trend, the majority of male commitments (55%) reported a race/ethnicity of White, followed by 22% Black, and 20% Hispanic.

During the five year trend period, the racial/ethnic distribution of the committed population has remained virtually the same from 2003 to 2007. The majority of commitments, (55% - 56%), reported a race/ethnicity of White.

For new court commitments in 2007, 18% were 25 to 29 years old. Twenty-six percent were 30 to 39 years old.

At their commitment, the average (mean) age for all offenders was 33 years old. Specifically, male offenders on average were 33 years old; the average (mean) age for females at commitment was 34 years old. Male ages ranged from 16 to 84, and female ages ranged from 17 to 81.

The age distribution of inmates committed to county facilities has changed over the last five years. When examining the percentage distribution for the age groups below, there has been a small but steady increase of 25 to 29 year olds, and 40 to 64 year olds.

There has been a small but consistent decrease in the percentage of 30 to 39 years old, comprising 29% of the new commitments in 2003, and only 26% of the new commitments in 2007. Also, 2007 marked the first year that the 40 to 64 age range surpassed the 30 to 39 age range in the number of new commitments (4,647 to 4,238, respectively).

Excluding information that was not reported, the educational level (self-reported) shows that close to 90% of the 2007 new commitments had an educational level of 12th grade or less. Approximately 11% reported at least some post-secondary education. Eight percent of the population did not report education level, (7% for males and 15% for females) and as such, this data should be interpreted with caution.

Excluding the 3,077 offenders whose information was not reported, over three-quarters of the population reported a marital status of single at time of commitment. Eleven percent claimed a marital status of married and 9% reported their status as divorced. Three percent reported separated. As seen in the table below, 37% of female commitments had missing marital status information and as such this table should be interpreted with caution.

Current Offense

From 2003 to 2007, four out of the five years saw an increase in the total number of New Court Commitments. Although there has been fluctuation in the numbers in the offense categories, the percentage distribution has remained fairly consistent. Person, Property, and Drug offenses each comprised 19% to 23% of the population each year.

When comparing data from 2003 to 2007, 2007 saw an 8% decrease in Person offenses while Drug offenses also increased by 8%. Property offenses decreased by 2% from 2003 to 2007 and Other offenses increased by 6%. The largest difference from 2003 to 2007 was the 32% increase of new commitments incarcerated for Sex offenses (279 in 2003 to 369 in 2007). It should be noted, however, that Sex offenses made up only 2% of the new commitments each year despite the raw number increase.

Sentencing and Court Information

Over the past five years, the percentage distribution of sentence length at commitment has remained relatively the same year after year. Despite the large increase in the number of new commitments in 2006, the percentage breakdown of sentence length stayed the same with 22% of the new commitments receiving 2 to 5 months sentences and 26% of the commitments receiving 6 to 11 months.

The average (mean) sentence length for new commitments has increased slightly each year (with the exception from 2005 to 2006) averaging over 8 months.

*Western Mass Regional Women's Correctional Center (WMRWCC) opened October 1, 2007.

Suffolk County House of Correction housed the majority (15%) male new court commitments in 2007. Hampden County House of Correction housed 28% of the female commitments. Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, Hampden and Suffolk Houses of Correction and the Western Massachusetts Regional Women's Correctional Center (WMRWCC) house their female offenders. Female new court commitments can be temporarily housed at other Houses of Correction awaiting transfer to a different correctional facility.

From 2003 to 2007, the following houses of correction exhibited the largest change in the number of commitments: Essex (57%), Barnstable (– 47%), Hampden (11%), and Middlesex (– 11%). Glossary

ADP	Average Daily Population
Design Capacity	Population capacity each institution was designed to hold.
Current Offense	Inmates may be incarcerated for multiple offenses. The offense reported is that associated with the longest maximum sentence. Offense labels can be found in the Appendix and are listed in alphabetical order by offense category.
DOC (or MA DOC)	Massachusetts Department of Correction.
Race/Ethnicity	Other category includes a small number of cases each year where race/ethnicity is unknown. It is likely that a large number of inmates who report their race as 'other' may belong in the Hispanic category, however that category has been phased out as an option for race due to a change in federal law. Hispanic is available as an Ethnicity, but sometimes this information is not reported.
Marital Status	The categories "Common Law", "Cohabitant", and "Life Partner" are combined into the category labeled "Common Law" for this report.
Mean	The sum of the values of all the observations in a data set divided by the number of observations (average).
Median	The point in an array of data which has an equal number of observations above and below it.
Sentence Type
Fine	Offender was given a fine, but because he or she was unwilling or unable to pay the fine, is serving time in prison.
Simple	One sentence received for a single offense.
Weekend/Week Day	A one to two day sentence that is to be served during a weekend or during a specified day of the week.

Appendix
